

Want career skills with real staying power?

Now you can earn Educational Psychology certificates to build academic skills that translate to career skills — and develop your résumé at the same time!

The College of Education Department of Educational Psychology now offers two certificates: the Educational Research Methodology Certificate and the Motivating Learning Environments Certificate.

These certificates are open to all University of Arizona graduate students.

Nontraditional student? No problem!

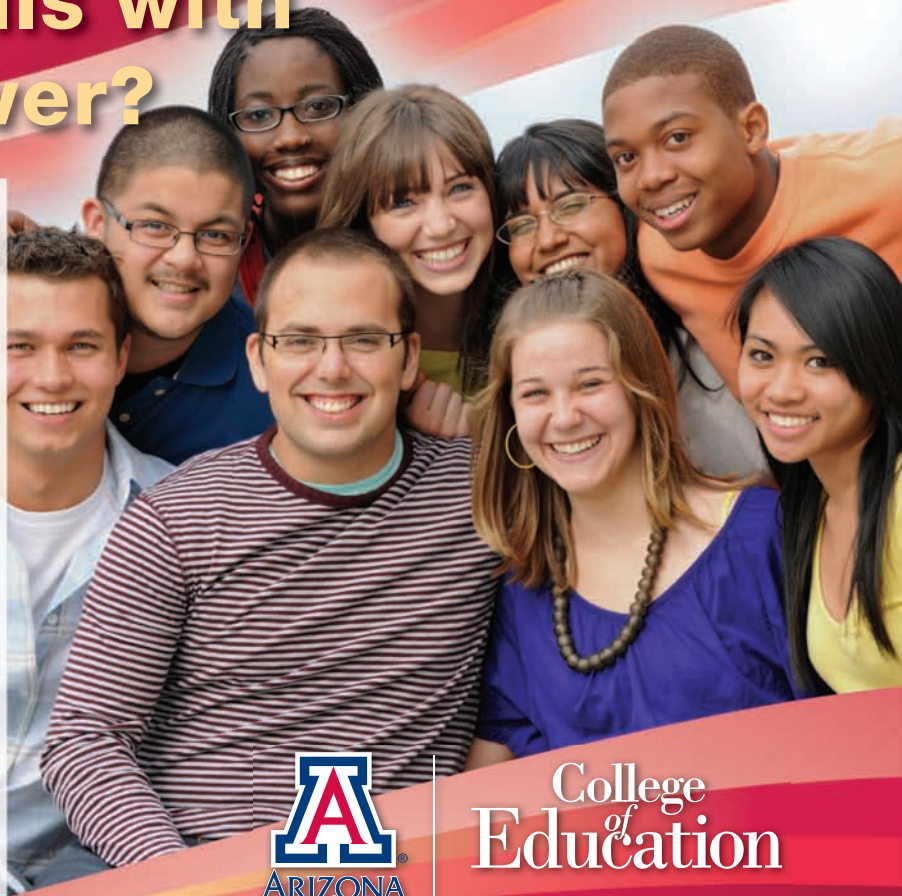

We offer late afternoon and evening, summer, and online courses for working professionals.

Department of Educational Psychology

coe-edp@email.arizona.edu

520-621-7828

www.coe.arizona.edu/ep

College
of Education

www.coe.arizona.edu

Educational Psychology Certificate Programs

You can choose from one or both certificates:

1 Educational Research Methodology Certificate

www.coe.arizona.edu/ep/erm

- Learn analytical computer skills
- Gain data presentation experience
- Develop critical research abilities
- Study program evaluation and assessment

Courses for this certificate (all required):

EDP 541 Statistical Methods in Education

EDP 558 Educational Tests and Measurements

EDP 560 Introduction to Educational Research

EDP 641 Selected Applications of Statistical Methods

"After graduation from Educational Psychology, I was extremely well prepared to work in student affairs and academic services. The courses and discussions about students' academic and psychological motivation and development have proved invaluable in my career!"

– Academic Advisor Sara Yerger, 2011 Graduate

Educational Psychology also offers master's and doctoral degrees, with an emphasis on research methods and various content areas. We prepare students to be active and successful researchers who can compete for research grants and publish in scholarly journals. Our preparation qualifies students for university faculty positions and for work in school, policy, or research settings in federal, state, local, and other agencies. We have a strong job-placement record!

2 Motivating Learning Environments Certificate

www.coe.arizona.edu/ep/mle

- Develop skills and strategies for working with learners at all stages
- Understand theories and practices in learning and motivation
- Discover classic and recent research in education and related fields

Courses for this certificate (four required):

EDP 502 Motivation and Development in Classroom Learning

EDP 505 Seminal Readings in Education and Educational Psychology

EDP 510 Learning Theory in Education

EDP 514 Psychology of Instruction

EDP 605 Psychological Theory in Educational Practice

College
of Education

www.coe.arizona.edu