

Following your dreams is a matter of course(s)!

Have you always dreamed of working with people with disabilities? Then it's time to enroll in one of our nationally recognized undergraduate programs.

It's no secret that our Department of Disability and Psychoeducational Studies is dedicated to advancing human and economic development through the empowerment and effective inclusion of culturally diverse people with disabilities and special abilities of all ages.

Now, just flip this card to find the course of action you want to take!

www.coe.arizona.edu

College of Education

So, what do you want to do?

1 Cross-Categorical Special Education

This option prepares you for teaching students with mild to moderate mental retardation, emotional disability, specific learning disabilities, orthopedic impairment, and other health impairments in a K-12 classroom setting.

2 Deaf Studies

This nonteaching degree prepares you to work with the deaf community in roles such as rehabilitation technician, job coach, interpreter, and support staff in residential and service agencies. Advanced competency in American Sign Language is part of the program. ASL coursework also meets the UA second-language requirement.

3 Rehabilitation

This nonteaching degree prepares you for entry-level work with people with disabilities in group homes, school-transition programs, mental-health facilities, correctional facilities, social-service agencies, and other settings.

Please see your advisor to declare this option as a major. Application to the College of Education is not required.

When should I apply?

The College of Education is an upper-division college, so you should apply for admission during your sophomore year. As soon as you decide you want to enroll in our programs, contact our Office of Student Services at 520-621-7865 or coe-edadvise@email.arizona.edu.

Application deadline for the fall semester is the second Friday in February. Cross-categorical and deaf studies cohorts start in the fall.

For more information, please contact the college's Office of Student Services at 520-621-7865 or coe-edadvise@email.arizona.edu.