

What do our graduates say about Teach Arizona?

"Teach Arizona is by far the most highly regarded program around. Before I even graduated, I had been offered two jobs based on being a Teach Arizona graduate."
— Terry Reed, 2011 Graduate

"The Teach Arizona program, with its year-long student teaching internship, gave me great confidence going into my first teaching job. After completing the program, I felt so well prepared that I hardly felt like a new teacher at all!"
— Scott Olmstead, 2011 Graduate

What do school districts say about Teach Arizona?

"Teach Arizona connects a deep understanding of learning theory with rigorous classroom observations and practice, resulting in highly trained teachers that we hire the minute they graduate."
— Superintendent Nic Clement, Flowing Wells School District

"Teach Arizona teachers are the best student teachers we have on our campus. They are well prepared, professional, and I wish I had a job for them all."
— Principal Mike Bejarano, Ironwood Ridge High School, Amphitheater School District

Teach Arizona

Teach Arizona is a one-year master's degree program for people who have earned a bachelor's degree and wish to become middle or high school teachers (grades 7-12).

All students begin together, take coursework together, and finish as a group. Coursework begins in the UA's pre-session semester in May and culminates with commencement the following May. Students intern in public schools for the full school year.

New!

We heard you! Teach Arizona is now in Chandler. For students in northern Pinal County and Maricopa County, Teach Arizona is presented in a hybrid format, with student teaching internships in Phoenix-area school districts. The hybrid coursework includes online instruction and required monthly face-to-face meetings in Chandler. For students in Pima County, Teach Arizona is presented in its traditional face-to-face format at the UA, with student teaching in Pima County school districts.
